

Clay Creations

11 May 2010

What a playdate this turned out to be!

Jay met up with so many of his old Nursery "kakis" last Saturday at the WowART Studio art lesson, and he had such a fun time! I know I blogged and blogged about this, but I took so many nice shots I can't resist posting MORE! 😊

Check out the photos!

All that creativity was hard work! Here's Jay having a break and having a snack!

The principal of WowART, Nancy, running through the difference between the works done by the kids and those of the adults.

Though she gave the theme “Free Form” (i.e. no theme!) to us, most of the parents put thought into creating SOME form.

But the kids were random and freely creative!

We were uber-proud parents that morning!

